

California's Innovation Economy – Educational System

Blumenthal, UCSC,
Gordon, CSU Fullerton
Bryant, UCI
Rudolph, CA Science Ctr.
Moderator: Betts, UCSD

Key Questions for Panel

- What is the impact of CA's postsecondary system on the CA economy, including innovation and economic development?
- How has the long-term decline in funding for public postsecondary harmed the CA economy?
 - What are the prospects looking forward?
- What do you see as short-term and long-term solutions to the funding problem?

Related Questions

- CA's Master Plan: Can CSU, UC and community colleges continue to meet the enrollment, transfer and graduation targets?
- Postsecondary sector pension underfunding – implications for hiring and retention
- Uncertainty

Even in Better Funded Times, CA Postsecondary Institutions Could Not Meet Demand (Betts, www.ppic.org, 2000)

Figure 3.2 Estimated Share of Gross Increase in California's Residents with Bachelor's, or Bachelor's Plus Postgraduate Degrees, 1970-90, Supplied by California and Out-of State Colleges

Key Questions for Panel

- What is the impact of CA's postsecondary system on the CA economy, including innovation and economic development?
- How has the long-term decline in funding for public postsecondary harmed the CA economy?
 - What are the prospects looking forward?
- What do you see as short-term and long-term solutions to the funding problem?