

Hi, Lora:

Thank you for letting me know.

I did not have time to read it all. Did the report point out that exposure to Smartmeter is an "involuntary exposure" in nature. This is not like using cell phone which is a personal choice. Exposure to Smartmeter is imposed upon consumers. The risk tolerance threshold should be much lower for involuntary exposures.

Thanks for the efforts to put the report together.

Best regards,

De-Kun Li, MD, PhD
Senior Research Scientist
Division of Research
Kaiser Foundation Research Institute
Kaiser Permanente
2000 Broadway
Oakland, CA 94612
510-891-3755 (8-481-3755)
510-891-3761 (fax)